Aim of the module (course unit): competences foreseen by the study programme

The course aims to explore the intricate relationship between storytelling and trauma, emphasizing the significant role narratives play in the processing and healing of traumatic experiences. Through various mediums such as personal narratives, literature, art, and participatory activities at the memory institutions, individuals find possibilities to express and comprehend their trauma. Furthermore, the course delves into topics such as transgenerational trauma transmission, challenges in communicating traumatic experiences at the authentic sites, and the dynamics of remembering and forgetting within contemporary society.

Students will develop analytical competencies and will improve skills in independent work, critical thinking, and evaluation. Practical application of theoretical concepts will be emphasized throughout the course.

Learning outcomes of the module (course unit)	Teaching/learning methods	Assessment methods
Students will know the main features of individual, collective, cultural, and multidirectional memory; the most important theories of trauma, basic principles, and terminology related to the communication of traumatic memories.	Problem-based teaching, active learning (group discussions, visits to the memory institutions)	Exam in a form of test
Students will be able to analyse strategies of trauma memory communication by identifying memory agents and actors, their aims and functions, as well as the mechanisms of behaviour of different memory regimes that result in mnemonic conflicts within society.	Active learning (independent research), research methods (search for information, critical literature analysis)	Research paper
Student will be able critically and independently recognize, analyze and summarize various representations of the traumatic past in a daily life of contemporary society.	Active learning (individual studying, case studies, problem discourse)	Presentations

Research paper (15,000 characters, approximately 6 pages; excluding appendices and bibliography).	50%	During the semester	Evaluation criteria: 5 points - The topic is original and current, and all parts of the work (introduction, analysis of the topic, conclusions, list of sources and literature) are included. The student presents data from various sources reflecting different perspectives and is able to articulate well-supported conclusions. The thoughts are consistent, and all parts of the work strongly correlate with each other. References to sources and literature are provided, the list of bibliography is included. 4 points - The topic is current, and all required parts of the work are present; however, there is a lack of author's comments, polemic, and conclusions are too general. The separate parts of the work are weakly correlated with each other. References to sources and literature are provided, the list of bibliography is included. 3 point - All required parts of the work are present, but the topic is not original and relevant; there are mistakes in footnotes, and the author does not engage in debate or present contrasting data. Conclusions are overly general and do not correlate with other parts of the work, and there is a poor database of sources and literature but the list of bibliography is included. 2 points – All required parts of the work are present, but the topic is not original and relevant; there are no footnotes, conclusions, the list of bibliography is not included. 1 point – All required parts of the work are present, but the topic is not original and relevant; there are no footnotes, conclusions, the list of bibliography is not included. 1 point – All required parts of the work are present, but the paperwork is not submitted in time. 0 points – The work is absent.
Active participation at the lectures and seminars and visits to the memory institutions	30%		 Evaluation criteria: 3 points: The student attended all seminars, actively participated in all discussions, made appropriate efforts in the preparation of presentations, answered questions effectively, and participated in all visits to memory institutions. 2 points: The student attended all seminars, participated moderately in discussions, made sufficient efforts in preparing presentations, provided adequate answers to questions, and participated in all visits to memory institutions. 1 point: The student attended all seminars, participated moderately in discussions, made enough efforts in preparing presentations, could not answered questions, and participated in all visits to memory institutions.
Written exam/Test	30%	During the examination session	 Evaluation: The test will consist of 10 open questions. 1 point – The answer is correct reasonable. 0,5 point – The answer is partly correct. 0 points – The answer is incorrect. A total 10 points will correspond to the grade of 10 (excellent); 9 points will correspond the grade of 9 (very good) and so on.
